TIP:

The surveys are designed to be understood easily. Thus, it is useful to have a team member present, while the young people taking part in the survey, to answer any arising questions and to assist with linguistic difficulties. In no case, the interviewees should feel like being looked over their shoulder. It is important to consider before the survey, how the interviewee will be informed about the results. Together with young people workshops can be organised to discuss the results or draw common conclusions respectively. In case you decide on a group discussion, it is advisable to have an external moderator, so you and your colleagues can take part in the group discussion. This survey is based on an action concept that can be found here:
